This day and age, people do seem to have less and less responsible attitude about their business life. With Joe Lynn, you get the real thing: professionalism. And what is his business about? It's about needs and personalities. In finding a roommate, he made a good match for me. I interviewed with several people, all with the same conclusion: Joe understands matching people.

With others there is the risk of failure, or worse, real problems (how about Hannibal Lector for a roommate?). With Joe, you get experience; he knows his commodity and his community.
